State Men To Advise On Co. J.C.

On April 2, 8:30 o'clock in the morning, officials from Sacramento will meet with Peninsula school superintendents and presidents of Monterey County's two junior colleges: Dr. Fred Huber of Monterey College and Dr. Fred Ching of Hartnell.

Purpose of the meeting, which will be held in the Monterey School District Board room, Walter Colton School, will be to explore "the most expeditious legal means of forming a county junior college district," according to Carmel School District Superintendent Stuart Mitchell.

State representatives will be Dr. Hugh Price, junior college section; and Dr. Drayton Nuttall, school district organization.

School district superintendents, in addition to Mr. Mitchell from Carmel, are Eldon Covell, Monterey, and Thomas Turner of Pacific Grove.

At last Friday's meeting of local school officials on county Junior College ways and means, two snags were uncovered. A Monterey school board member expressed the opinion that Monterey High School District should receive compensation for its investment in building and land in Monterey College. So far, Hartnell has not raised this question regarding their investment in their property. Also Dr. Ching said that if the county district was formed through annexation rather than county-wide election, he felt that the Hartnell board, which would have the deciding voice, should be unanimous. At present it is not. The individual districts on the Peninsula would hold annexation elections.

Most serious problem from point of view of Carmel and Monterey Districts is a possible time-lag between Carmel's annexation to Hartnell (Carmel would have to move first, since it is contiguous) and the annexation of Monterey High School District. During that period Carmel students might have to attend Hartnell, an undesirable situation from the point of view of

We're Not Forgetting Art In Our Competition To Produce Scientists Says Rip Matteson, Artist-Educator

"Art and other cultural subjects deserve as much emphasis in our schools as science," is the considered opinion of Richard V. (Rip) Matteson, Artist and Dean of Education at Monterey Peninsula College.

"All Junior Colleges in California offer art courses. The scope, intensity, and facilities vary, of course, in relation to community needs and interests. At Monterey Peninsula College we have an excellent art program on a wide scale, reflecting the interest given to art in this area. Our two-year art courses, Rip added, "are as good as in any art school in the country."

The college also has a music department. As for student participation, music has a slight edge in practice courses, while the art department has a slight edge in art appreciation.

One of Rip Matteson's duties is to interview candidates for teaching positions with MPC. Last year he interviewed scores of applicants, among them over forty art teachers. It surprised him that in this group he found an unusually high proportion of not only qualified artists but able teachers as well.

"I could have hired twenty excellent art teachers," Rip maintains. "On the other hand, it is often difficult to find good instructors in other areas."

Rip Matteson estimates that about fifteen per cent of students who take art courses make art their career. The art department at MPC is just ten years old. It graduated a good many students who subsequently achieved remarkable success. One of them was Cynthia Drasnin, who now works for a large Philadelphia advertising agency. As a commercial artist she handles all the advertisements for the French Line, which is no mean account. Another one was Corrine Hansen, also a commercial artist, who is in charge of

Not Motels But Bugs Are City's Greatest Peril

"It's later than you think," Forestry Commissioner Ernest Leffingwell warned Carmel citizens yesterday afternoon. He was concluding a report to the forestry commission on diseases which are destroying our natural pine forest.

Scale, ips, mistletoe, galls, beetles and moths infest our trees, he stated. Old age is another tree problem.

"If the people wish to preserve the trees of Carmel they must destroy these enemies," Mr. Leffingwell emphasized. He exhibited branches infected with the blights of scale, borers and dwarf mistletoe.

Commissioner Leffingwell also reported that a state alert has been declared about the infestation of ips in California. The city, and property owners, should cut out and burn all infested branches, burn trees already dead from this cause, he added.

Scale, he said, may be controlled by spraying. It is easily recognized. A heavy, brownish-black encrustation surrounds twigs of infected trees. "The trees have a sick look and appear black," he said. This is caused by groups of scale, an aphid-type of sucking insect which lives off the sap of the pine, destroying the tree. Mr. Leffingwell told forestry commissioners that a city-planted tree beside his home at Eighth and Lincoln Street died. A replant also died. He showed a twig from the last dead tree to Forestry Commissioner Herbert Blanks, a trained forester. Scale had caused the two tree deaths, Mr. Blanks told Mr. Leffingwell. Later investigation by Mr. Leffingwell proved that trees on a nearby lot had died from the same disease. On a field trip with State Forester John Dowdakin he

Carmel Little League Try Outs Scheduled, Spring Has Arrived

Tryouts will be held again Saturday, March 28, 8:30 to 11:30 o'clock for boys 11 and 12 years old; 1:00 to 4:00 o'clock for 8 to 10 year olds.

It is important that the boys report for the tryouts only on the dates and at the time scheduled

Council Will Take Its Time To Consider If It Will Reconsider Its Ban On Fenton Gas Station

The community will have to live in suspense for two weeks at least, perhaps more, as to whether or not the Carmel City Council will reconsider their refusal to allow a gas station in the proposed underground garage of the Fenton Development.

That part of town is zoned against gas stations. The planning commission ruled in favor of allowing one as an accessory use to the parking garage. When citizens appealed the planning commission's decision to the city council last month, that body over-ruled the planning commission, 3-2.

At last night's council meeting, two of the citizens, Lady Claude Kinnoull and Mrs. R. Ellis Roberts, who headed the appeal petition at last month's council meeting, reversed themselves and asked the council to reconsider its ruling.

Thomas S. Montgomery, their lawyer, said "My clients have not changed their minds but their positions."

He did not elaborate on that interesting statement, but did say that his clients had looked at the plans for the Fenton development and found them attractive.

The four-man council, presided over by James Buffington in the absence of Mayor John Chitwood, decided to take no action on whether or not they would reopen The Affair Fenton Gas Station "until we have a full council." They will hold an adjourned meeting March 18, 8:00 o'clock, to approve plans for improvement of Junipero Street between Ocean and Eighth. At that time they can discuss whether they wish to backtrack on the Fenton Gas Station, or they may put if off until their regular meeting on the first Wednesday of April. If they do decide to "reconsider," they will hold a public hearing with due notice, they stated last night.

One councilman, Gunnar Norberg, favored a decision then and there, namely that the council would consider the matter closed. Gordon Campbell, representing Fred and Clara Leidig, and Admiral C. W. Fisher, representing the citizens committee, were of the same mind as Councilman Norberg. Both pointed out that the matter had already had public hearing, thorough debate, and the council had acted "wisely and in line with the wishes of the majority of Carmel citizens." Admiral Fisher reported that the executive board of the citizens commit-

Council Proposes Stop Motel Law To Planners For Study

The city council tossed a bundle of ideas to the planning commission last night, all concerned with limiting large business building development, and controlling or stopping motels.

The stop motels device, tentatively proposed by Allen Knight and later elaborated by Gunnar Norberg, would be based on a city's right to exercise density control. Such an ordinance, probably in the form of an amendment to the existing zoning ordinance, would prohibit construction of new motels or hotels within two blocks of an existing motel or hotel, in the interest of density control. As an argument in justification is the heavy burden the 871 motel units already in existence put on the city. Councilman Knight, who is also a member of the sanitary district board, said that new sewer lines, and relocation of sewer lines will shortly be necessary.

Councilmen Knight and Norberg both emphasized that any such legislation would have to have a "grandfather" clause to protect the rights of existing motels.

The proposals to control large store development is based on land coverage requirements.

45 Have Signed Up For Bach Chorus Auditions Sat.-Sun.

Over 45 singers have already made appointments for the Bach Festival Chorus auditions which will be held Saturday and Sunday, March 7-8, at the residence of Miss Angie Machado, Third and Santa Fe.

Sandor Salgo, conductor of the Festival, will be present to hold the auditions. In order to make appointments, applicants should telephone Miss Machado after 6:00 o'clock in the evening. Auditions begin at 3:00 o'clock Saturday afternoon. All former chorus members and new singers are urged to attend.

First rehearsal will be held on March 10, 7:30 o'clock in the evening, in the Music Room at Carmel High School. Copies of the B Minor Mass will be given out to accepted chorus members for which the singers should be prepared to pay deposit or sale charge.

SPORTS SCHEDULE

BASKETBALL

March 5-7—Carmel Invitational Basketball Tournament, 4:30 o'clock to 10:00 o'clock.

TRACK AND FIELD

Saturday, March 7 — Gonzales High School at Carmel, 1:00 o'clock.

PADRES PLACE TWO ON ALL-LEAGUE HOOP SQUAD

Carmel High's championship basketball team placed two sharpshooters on the mythical All-CCAL B-Division squad and garnered one reserve spot on the top five. Dale Dawson and Bill Hicks, both seniors in their third year of B-division play, were unanimous choices for places on the first five while Bill Wallace, a two-year letterman in varsity ball, picked up the sixth-place reserve spot.

Russ Wise, Carmel's 6-3 junior center, was picked on the second team and was vigorously supported for one of the first team spots. The All-League team was exclusively a senior affair and featured veteran performers with two or more seasons of varsity basketball. King City placed their high-scoring center, Wendell Taylor; Gonzales got their big 6-7 Glen Cooper on the squad; Live Oak's prolific scorer, Bert Blodgett, was an unanimous choice for the squad along with Carmel's Dawson and Hicks.

Jim Brown, a six-foot freshman was the only Carmel lightweight to make the first unit but dimutive Mike Draper garnered one of the second team spots. The lightweight first unit was dominated by co-champ Pacific Grove as Barry Baskin and Bucky Boyns were unanimous picks on the squad. San Lorenzo Valley placed freshman Steve Rodriguez and Live Oak was represented by senior Warren Nishihari.

CARMEL'S 12th ANNUAL HOOP TOURNEY STARTS TONIGHT

Play in the 12th annual Carmel High basketball tournament gets underway at 4:30 this afternoon when the Gilroy Mustangs, second-place winners in last year's tournament, tips-off against Marty Baskin's Pacific Grove Breakers.

The Mustangs and Breakers haven't met this season but it appears to be a breeze for Bob Hagen's powerful Gilroy squad which came close to picking up all the blue chips in the CCAL A-division play. While the Mustangs are rated close to the top in tournament play the below-par Breakers are just out for the exercise in this one. The Pacific Grove hoopsters have won the 'Carmel' twice since its inception in 1947 and the Gilroy lads have taken home the championship once.

Tonight's six o'clock game pits Monterey against Hollister in a rehash of their A-division play. Monterey has already whipped the Haybalers in two league games this season and figures to get the job done again tonight. Coach Ed Larsh has a predominantly junior class team at Monterey High this season and the Toreadores have improved tremendously since the early season games. The Haybalers are a fast-running, wild-shooting aggregation which can beat you 85-40 in one game and turn around in the next game and give it away by the same score. In Grow, Faxon and Engler, Hollister has three of the best shots in the Coast Counties Athletic League.

In the 7:30 game, Coach Ray Snyder's Fremont High (Sunnyvale) tackles the Gonzales Spartans in a game which figures to be a standoff. The Fremont Indians are one of the weakest teams in the Santa Clara Valley League this season while the Gonzales squad finished a shaky third in the CCAL B-division. Fremont has won the 'Carmel' more often than any other team in the tournament and can afford to be one of the weak ones this season. The Spartan's Glen Cooper at 6-7 is the tallest player in the tournament and the all-league senior could be the spark to get Buddy Guiterrez and his gang over the Indians.

Host Carmel has drawn a weak Gustine squad for the 9:00 o'clock game and figures to reach the semi-finals without too much effort. The Padres clipped the Indians easily in the Gustine Tourney during December and the B-division champions are heavily favored in the rematch.

Friday night's play matches the [illegible] fray with the winner of the Monterey-Hollister game while the losers of these two games move into the consolation bracket. The winner of the Fremont-Gonzales game tangles with the winner of the Carmel-Gustine match and the losers meet in the consolation round.

Saturday night's play starts at 6:00 o'clock in the third-place game. The consolation finals are slated for 7:30 and the championship finals will hit the boards at 9:00 o'clock.

Tickets for the entire tourney go for $1.50 (adults) and 75 cents (students). The tournament is always a sellout and fans are advised to get to the Carmel High gym early and avoid being shut out.

PADRES WIN TWO FOR THREE AT PACIFIC GROVE

Winning as expected in the varsity and junior varsity clashes, Carmel High's basketball squads won two of the three games played at the cozy PG gym last Friday night in the CCAL-B-division's final games of the 1958-59 season.

Carmel's hard-trying lightweight squad dropped a close 37-36 decision to Coach Charley Howell's classy Wavelets and had to settle for a second-place tie in the lightweight title chase. The powerful Carmel varsity coasted to a 42-35 win over the hapless Breaker heavies who have suffered through one of their most miserable seasons. Coach Dick Lawitzke's Padre junior varsity overpowered Jim LeBeck's jayvees, 52 to 41, as Toby Edson, Pat Boyle and Fred Bucher peppered the net with amazing consistency.

Dale Dawson, sparkplug of Carmel's varsity squad, enjoyed one of his best nights of the current season against arch-rival Pacific Grove by racking up 18 points and setting up the Padre attack with his deft passing and teamwork.

Superior rebounding by Russ Wise plus good reserve performances by Craig Smith and Chris Wilkin gave the Padres game control from the second quarter until the final buzzer.

Friday night's action against Pacific Grove marks the final league game for seniors Frank Wallace, Pete Willcox, Dennis Peavey, Bill Hicks, Dale Dawson, David Farr, Craig Smith, Lee Harms and Walter Helm. Returning lettermen back for further action next season will be Chris and John Wilkin and Russ Wise.

Despite a 17-point scoring outpost by Bucky Jones, Carmel's Mitteds came close to upsetting the league-leading Wavelets. As time expired in the spirited lightweight fracas, Carmel's Mike Draper was fouled in the act of shooting and was awarded two free throws. Needing two points to lock up the game and send it into overtime, the plucky Carmel sophomore hit for one of them to fall one short of gaining a tie and giving the Little Padres an overtime shot at the classy Wavelet squad. Jim Brown's 13 points topped the Carmel scorers in this one while Pat Cunningham and Mike Dunham starred on rebounding and defense.

READ HURT WHILE SKIING

A recent letter from Bob Read had a Swiss hospital address. He wrote that he was a patient in St. Josefhaus, Davos, suffering from injuries received while skiing.

Bob fell on a jump, chipped his pelvis, dislocated a hip and cracked two ribs. He was skiing with his wife Anne and their two children, Tess and Tim, when the accident occurred.

The Reads are spending a year abroad. Anne is studying piano in Zurich and the children are attending a Swiss school. Bob is the former manager of the Golden Bough and Hill Theaters.

Jim Rutledge Joins Carmel Police Force

Carmel has another big policeman, James H. Rutledge, 37, 6-3, 200 pounds, married, two sons, one attending Monterey College, the other in the military service. He and Mrs. Rutledge make their home at Camino Del Monte near Pescadero.

Officer Rutledge has been in police work most of his adult life. For 16 years he served in the military police corps, with a year out between enlistments on the police force at Holtville in Imperial Valley. Since his release from the army last year, he has been serving as a guard at the military prison at Lompoc.

He started to work Monday, and the city council approved his employment at last night's meeting. Rutledge fills the gap created by the resignation of Dick Uzzell.

Willox Again Is Planners' Chairman

George Willox was re-elected chairman of the Carmel planning commission last week. Fred Keeble was chosen to serve as vice chairman for another year. Larry Rose remains as commission secretary. Planning commissioners took this action in their annual meeting which preceded the regular monthly meeting on February 25.

Chairman Willox re-appointed all committees as they stood but named Commissioners Fred Keeble, Herbert Blanks and Hugh Smith as new steering committee members.

Secretary Rose read the annual report of the commission. During 1958 commissioners dealt with 79 matters as compared with 90 in 1957. They held 12 regular meetings, two adjourned meetings, two special meetings for public hearings. They met four times as a board of adjustments; had a study session before each meeting; frequent committee meetings, at times as often as once a week.

Eleven of the 14 new construction matters before the commission in 1958 dealt with multiple dwelling structures. Only two of the 19 alteration and addition matters were concerned with enlarging multiple dwellings.

Outstanding among commission action in 1958, according to the report, was the five year reforestation program adopted by the commission in June. The council approved the program and it is being implemented by the newly-formed Forestry Commission.

The Carmel Pine Cone-Cymbal
Carmel, California
Dear Wilma:

It was something of a shock to hear that the City Council had voted against allowing the placement of gasoline pumps in the underground garage of the projected Carmel Plaza. Although this action is possibly justified by a strict interpretation of the ordinance governing accessory use, it appears to be a denial of a most sincere effort to plan a business block as an integrated whole completely in keeping with the so-called "spirit of Carmel."

The plan for the Plaza is dependent on the underground garage which in turn is not feasible unless the lessee can operate gasoline pumps. The residents of Carmel have been annoyed by the problem of finding a place to park. This problem is solved beautifully for the patrons of the Plaza. If the garage is doomed by the action of the council, then off-street parking will have to be provided on the ground level. This means less area will be devoted to planting and less for foot traffic through the block. The buildings will be built up to the limit on the street sides.

Neither time or money has been spared in developing a plan for the Plaza that would combine fine architecture, beautiful landscaping and spacious areas for pedestrians. If these are things that Carmelites desire it would be well if the City Council reconsidered their decision.

Sincerely,
Sam Colburn

March 2, 1959

Mrs. Wilma Cook, Editor,
Carmel Pine Cone
Carmel
Dear Mrs. Cook:

Any of your readers who are interested in stopping the construction of a freeway between the Carmel River (where the present freeway ends) and San Simeon might be interested to know that a bill has been introduced in the Legislature as Senate Bill 480, legalizing the proposed State Freeway System. The Point Lobos League is opposing this proposed freeway and has asked Senator Farr to introduce an amendment excluding it from the bill but up to the present he has been reluctant to do so.

The argument is advanced by Senator Farr and others that it would be better to wait until actual construction of this freeway is proposed, perhaps 10 or 15 years from now, and let the people of the county decide at that time whether they want the freeway or not. The County Planning Commission, to which an appeal was made, takes the same attitude. They have refused to hold any hearings on it at the present time.

The Point Lobos League thinks that once Senate Bill 480 is passed, it will be much more difficult to get the freeway out of the proposed system, and it is therefore urging deleting it from the bill and the master plan . . . now.

As an answer to the argument that a quick way of reaching the Hearst Castle (now a part of the State Park System) is needed, we point out that 99 per cent of the population of Northern California can reach it over the proposed 101 Freeway with connections from Paso Robles to Cambria, which is now in the proposed system. The construction of this freeway first will take the pressure off from the Carmel-San Simeon section. When motorists who are short of time find that it will be necessary to travel the shore-line section slowly, word will gradually be passed around and the other freeway will be used.

We feel that protecting the Carmel-San Simeon section from freeway construction is a matter of state-wide interest, because this is one of California's greatest scenic jewels and we are taking steps to get cooperation from other conservation organizations throughout the state. We urge Monterey Peninsula residents to interest their friends in other parts of the state in writing to their legislators in opposition to this freeway.

In Senate Bill 480 we have a gun pointed at our heads. Shall we leave it there for another 10 or 15 years, hoping that it may not go off suddenly, as it did in the case of the Carmel Hill interchange, or shall we try to protect ourselves now?

Very sincerely,
Margaret Wentworth Owings,
Secretary, Point Lobos League

Mrs. Bartram Has First Display Of Weavers' Series

During the months of March and April, the Carmel Crafts Guild will show the work of several members of the Weaving Section of the Guild in its Library case to demonstrate the many types of weaving done on the Peninsula. These exhibits will be previews of the demonstrations these weavers will give of their special skills at the Northern California Handweavers' Conference to take place on May 2 and 3 at the Monterey Fair Grounds. This year the Weaving section of the Carmel Crafts Guild is acting as host to the 1,000 or more delegates who attend these weaving conferences.

The first of the Harrison Memorial Library weaving displays, on view from March 6 through March 12, will consist of leaves from one of Mrs. Verne Bartram's many sample notebooks. Each page has the threading draft, the treadling instructions, and a woven swatch showing the pattern.

Trained at Penland School of Handicrafts in the Great Smokies of North Carolina, Mrs. Bartram is very much interested in early Colonial patterns. One of the lovely bedspreads in her home, called Summer and Winter, she says is generally thought to be the only pattern which is surely of American origin. Its pine tree and snowball design is so woven that it is dark color on one side and very light color on the other. The pioneer housewife in her small cabin could change her color scheme to fit the seasons simply by reversing the bedspread, an example of American ingenuity, often elaborately suggested in current home decorating articles.

A graduate of the College of Emporia, Kansas, Mrs. Bertram taught Latin, and it was not until her younger son was graduated from Harvard and both sons went into the service that she took up weaving as a hobby.

She bought her first loom after three weeks of 10-hour-a-day intensive training offered by the WPA, followed this up with study at numberless weaving shops in many midwest states, and then she took extensive work at Penland.

In their home on the Mesa, Mrs. Bartram's weaving room has a large four-harness loom, a smaller eight-harness loom, and an experimental loom; drawers are filled with lovely linen table sets and towels; furniture is upholstered in handwoven fabrics; and right now dress and coat material is in the process for her spring wardrobe.

Mrs. Bartram says that the experience which most confirmed her enthusiasm for weaving as a craft was seeing what a helpful therapeutic value it had for the wounded and shocked veterans whom she assisted with their weaving at the Forbes Air Force Base Hospital.

We Don't Forget In Science Age Education, Matteson

the advertising department with one of the Kaiser Company establishments in the Bay area. Making his living exclusively by fine arts is Don Nice, a former soldier at Fort Ord. He obtained a part of his art training in the night classes at MPC and on Saturday excursions with Rip Matteson.

The life drawing night class, now conducted by Robert Nelson, throughout the years attracted a number of established artists from the Peninsula. Rip recollects seeing there, to name just a few, the two Carmelites, Colburn and Veletri. Hank Ketcham also used to drop in before his Dennis the Menace made him famous.

"Several of our students won important art scholarships. Not a single year goes by without at least one student of a tremendous potential," Rip Matteson told us.

Rip's interest in art education is easily explained by the fact that he himself is an artist. He made his decision to become one when he was just about seven years old. If there is anything unusual about this case of a boy's dream come true, then it's just that nobody attempted to make him change his mind.

His father, an orthodontist, was a frustrated artist. He, too, would have chosen art as a career. His parents, however, wanted him to pursue a more practical profession. Realizing what parental interference can do, Rip's father and mother gave the boy all encouragement.

Rip, who was born in Oakland in 1920, graduated from Palo Alto High in 1937. Then he went for a year to San Jose State. His curriculum there consisted solely of art courses. The following year he enrolled in the University of California in Berkeley. Majoring in art, Rip Matteson was exposed to the influence of a magnificent teaching staff. Evaluating what he learned from his teachers there, Rip concludes that each of them contributed something significant. Most important of all, they created an atmosphere which inspired the young people to stay with art.

The "Lehrjahre" at Berkeley brought Rip Matteson in close practical contact with newspaper and magazine work. He was editor of the student humor monthly, The Pelican, which he also supplied with cartoons. In addition, he was appointed art editor of The Daily Californian, the Berkeley campus newspaper, and of The Grizzly, the university student literary magazine.

At Berkeley, he also met a dark-haired co-ed, Dorothy Vigars, who majored in decorative arts. In 1941, Dorothy became Mrs. Richard V. Matteson.

After two years with the art department at the Kaiser Company shipyards in the Bay area, Rip was drafted into the Navy. Someone there, looking up the new draftee's record, noted his experience as an editor and cartoonist. Until the day of his discharge after the war, Rip Matteson served as art editor with the U. S. Navy weekly newspaper, Tadcen Topics, in San Diego.

Back in civilian life and eligible for further education under the GI bill, Rip enrolled in the California College of Arts and Crafts in Oakland. From there he went again to the University of California. There he obtained his Master's in painting, and his teaching credential. In his last year there in 1947, Rip won the coveted Anne Brenner Award for achievement in art.

His first teaching job was as chairman of the art department with the Blackburn University in Illinois. His son, Ron, was born there in 1949. That year the three Mattesons returned to California. Rip learned that the Monterey Peninsula College was looking for an artist to handle the art education. Struck by the idea, as he put it, to work in this particular area, at the West coast art center, Rip applied, and was accepted.

He taught, painted, joined the Carmel Art Assocation, and exhibited regularly. He was successful. The family had a fine home—designed by Mrs. Matteson—on Herrman Drive in Monterey. Still, Rip was not satisfied, feeling that something, somewhere was missing. He wanted to learn more!

In 1956, the Mattesons locked their house and went to Italy. Rip was curious about European teaching methods. In Rome, he enrolled in the Bel Arte School, a one-line institution, with the conventional, classical approach to painting. That was good. Rip felt the need for strict discipline.

"I wanted to be sure that I'd have a foundation reliable as a taking-off point. I may say that in Europe I learned more than ever before," he told us.

Upon his return to Monterey, MPC offered Rip Matteson the position of Dean of Instruction. Rip found himself enjoying administrative work. One of its advantages, he said, is that a person is always fresh for painting, much more so than if teaching art five days a week. Last year, he painted about fifty canvases.

About his painting, Rip Matteson had this much to say:

"To me, each picture has its own spirit, its own nature. Within a single day, I'd paint three pictures, none of them in the same style. I'll switch from a naturalistic portrait to an abstract painting or a stylized form of design. The picture has to have a complete freedom."

In addition to his work as a college administrator and a painter, Rip is member of the board of the Carmel Art Association, member of the State Council of California Teachers Association, and a member of California Council for Teachers Education Committee on Teaching Credential. The task of this committee is to prepare recommendations that would make the requirements for teaching more professional, and liberalize them at the same time. Next April will find Richard V. Matteson at Santa Barbara, discussing the subject with other California educators.

saw other instances of destruction by scale which severely damages young pines.

Later Mr. Leffingwell made a survey of small trees on Ocean Avenue, Junipero, San Antonio and Santa Lucia Streets. He found places for 700 seedling pines to be planted by the city and property owners, these trees to be placed 40 and 50 feet apart along city-owned street frontages and property owners' sidelines.

Dwarf mistletoe, a parasite, sends roots into twigs, thus destroying pines, Mr. Leffingwell continued. Citing the problem of old age, he remarked that out of 34 trees planted 50 years ago in the center strip on Ocean Avenue by Kumahiko Miyamoto, 13 have died, two are going, a mortality of 45 per cent. He advised rapid replanting in every area.

Forestry commission chairman Joseph Weston issued a "chairman's challenge." Mr. Weston wants each member of the forestry commission to prove their enthusiasm for the city's reforestation program by planting one Monterey pine on their property. He also asked them each to persuade one other property owner to plant a tree. He included planning commissioners and arts commissioners in his pine-planting challenge.

"Trees are vital to the character and beauty of Carmel," he declared. "I want every property owner to know that they may have the city plant a tree in front of any Carmel lot." Mr. Weston also wanted something immediately done about ips.

Forestry commissioners were outraged by the statement of Street Superintendent William Askew who said that some citizens poisoned city-planted young pines along Carmel streets. James Buffington, Carmel's street commissioner and an ex officio member of the forestry commission, promised greater attention to the removal of dead and diseased branches and trees. Commissioner Blanks presented a bibliography for the forestry commission. He recommended acquisition of a good book on tree ecology. Mr. Weston favored establishment of a forestry commission library.

Mr. Weston also advocated preparation of a catalogue of desirable native trees for Carmel's tree-planting program. He asked each commissioner to present a list of desirable native trees at their next meeting. "Citizens may contribute their lists, too," he added.

Screening of city-owned Block 12 (The Dump) with dwarf blue gums did not meet with Mr. Weston's approval. He wants native California trees instead.

"Any person maintaining the blue gum, a native of Australia, is a native California tree, can't hold that position," interpolated Mr. Leffingwell.

The forestry commissioners at Mr. Buffington's suggestion decided to visit Block 12. They also will prepare lists of native trees for skyline and cover planting categories, thus establishing policies for situations such as the Block 12 matter which was continued.

Commission Secretary Larry Rose stressed the importance of written reports of all forestry commission findings, for future city use. He pointed out the paucity of city tree records after presenting commissioners with a folder containing all Carmel's past city action on trees.

At the opening of the meeting, Chairman Weston presented a chart showing the organization of the commission into three committees: tree culture, tree planting, and public education. He appointed Mr. Blanks and Mr. Leffingwell to the tree culture committee; Mr. Buffington and himself, with tree expert Hugh Smith as advisor, to tree planting committee; Donald Teague and himself to public education committee.

"I want Carmel to think trees, trees, trees," said Chairman Joseph Weston.

Council Okays Two Oak Tree Removals, Cypress Trimming

Carmel City Council said yes to the two tree removal and one tree trimming requests on their tree tour agenda Tuesday afternoon.

Brayton Wilbur was given permission to trim the cypresses in front of his house on Scenic at Twelfth, under the supervision of the street superintendant.

Carl R. Sherman will be allowed to remove the leaning oak which obstructs construction of a driveway at the south east corner of Santa Rita and Ocean.

Street department's request to remove a second oak at Junipero and Sixth was granted, another tree to be planted within the curb line.

Spring Comes With A Gentle Heave

Carmel was roused from the Spring midafternoon somnambulance by a gently heaving earthquake around 3:30 Monday. "Hollister must be sweeping up the broken dishes about now," was the general comment. Usually, when Carmel feels a quake at all, Hollister, in its close association with the San Andreas Fault, is severely shaken.

University of California seismologists placed the epicenter a little north of Hollister, east of Watsonville, and pegged it at Richter 5.5, which should have broken dishes, window panes and shaken down plaster but didn't, apparently because it came as a big sway instead of a jar. The quake was felt all along the Fault through San Francisco to Santa Rosa. There was an after-shock shortly before midnight the same day and another Tuesday morning.

Music On The Peninsula

BY MARY LINDSAY-OLIVER

When Mozart's Opera, the Abduction from the Seraglio, conquered Vienna in 1782, his patron, the Emperor Joseph II, remarked that it had too many notes! The same could be said of the un-cut Marriage of Figaro given by the Golden Hind Opera Company at Pacific Grove Saturday as the fourth event of The Community Concert Series. Many composers in all periods have overwritten, and today the public finds it difficult to have enough time and patience to listen, unfortunately; but the melodic and artful charm of Mozart entrances, nevertheless.

Thus, the performance given by nine gifted members from the Playbox, a unique Berkeley little theater, held the rapt attention of a full house, which was certainly justified. All good actors, with eight years of experience in many types of plays, they have made their Mozart a specialty and convey with voices and easy deportment the subleties of the domestic comedy as well as the generally exacting tessitura of the composer's voice parts in aria and recitative with exhilarating speed.

Credit must therefore be given the stage director, David Ostwald, who has recently received a $10,000 grant from the Ford Foundation to continue activity of his project. A high point of the performance was the singing of Jacquelina Victorina as the Countess Almaviva in her first aria, which her fine voice enhanced with a true legato bel canto and tonal volume.

Henry McGuckin as Figaro, Corine Christopherson as Zuzanne, Mary Wilderstein as Marcellina, Peggy Overshiner as Cherubino, Douglas Miller as the Count Almaviva, Marian Stenbergh as Barbarina were all distinguished in their parts, and for character and makeup.

Richard Styles as Dr. Bartolo cleverly doubled for Antonio, and Ora Hoskinson doubled for Don Basilo and Don Curzino. The costuming added much to the effectiveness of the whole, while Don Jones at the piano, placed on the stage, interpreted the score with spirit and comprehension; the whole of which resulted in really Mozart!

Monterey County Symphony rehearsals under Gregory Millar are progressing for the Children's two concerts on March 8 and 10 and for the third event of the adult series a week later. A symphony choir has been formed, supplemented by voices from Salinas, in order to give the choral part of the last movement of the Beethoven Ninth.

This work and the Missa Solemnis, of which I heard an outstanding performance at Leeds Centenial Festival in England last October with a huge Midland choir, are the two greatest works of their kind by Beethoven and deal with the subjects of joy, freedom and spiritual aspirations.

The Children's Concert includes a 14-year-old boy as soloist in the first movement of the Beethoven No. 1 Piano Concerto.

Gilbert Boyer's Piano Recital on Sunday offered an interesting program presenting five composers' works from the 17th to the 20th century, which he played to a sizable house. Opening with Les Moissonneurs and Les Petit Moulins a Vent, originally written for the harpsichord by Couperin who was a prime master of the instrument, Boyer immediately established his dexterity, also throughout the Bach Partita No. 1 in B flat that followed.

Prokofiev's Third Piano Sonata op. 28 came next. Its movements are tempestuous and call for vehemence and impetuosity, which was given with the pianist's powerful attack and brittle chords. It particularly suited his temperament and earned enthusiastic recalls. The Chopin Fantasie op. 49, while brilliantly handled, lacked some harmonic balances and lyric qualities familiar in this work as also in the Waltz and Etude given for encores, where Chopin demands so much "singing" quality in melodic lines and poetic sympathy, which few pianists today seem to possess. Nevertheless there was much that was worthwhile, and every artist is free to interpret for himself.

Finally, Ravel's Gaspard de la Nuit of Ondine, Le Gibet and Scarbo—impressions evolved from Aloysius Bertrand's Stories of the Middle Ages—flowed from under the pianist's hands with interesting modulations. They are cleverly weird and demoniacal in the gruesome subjects of Le Gibet and Scarbo, though fluidly attractive for the watery nymph Ondine. In response to appreciative applause, Boyer added three extra numbers, those of Chopin already mentioned and Villa Lobos Almitah. Many went backstage to greet and congratulate the artist who had shown considerable accomplishment as pianist since last heard and will be welcomed again by the community.

I attended the Benefit Concert for the San Francisco Symphony with Jack Benny as soloist at the Opera House Monday. Though Benny is not an artist of the stature of Heifetz, Szigeti, Stern and others, he can cleverly take them all off as he did in talks and comic examples, as well as disrupting the personnel of the orchestra to the shrieks and laughter of the packed house. He is, however, no novice to violin technique, for when he usurped the leader's chair in the final Rimsky - Korsakoff Capriccio Espagnol, the orchestra could hardly keep up with him!

Conductor Jorda, whose serious half of the program included the Overture to the Barber of Seville, a Mozart Symphony, Stravinsky's Suite From Petrouchka and Barber's beautiful Adagio for Strings, entered thoroughly into the buffoonery of the popular comedian, who is a charming and modest man to meet. He was presented on the stage with an honorary membership of the Musicians' Federation by the president, Herman D. Kenin, who recently replaced Petrillo. They had worked together years ago in the Orpheum Theater.

Citizens Committee Supports Council's Fenton Plaza Stand

Monday evening, members of the executive board of the Carmel Citizens Committee passed a resolution reiterating the group's Fenton Plaza stand and supporting the city council's recent decision on the Fenton Plaza proposed commercial development. The city council on February 17 voted not to allow gas pumps as an accessory use for an underground parking facility in the Fenton Plaza.

The council's stand, stated the resolution, "Is in line with Carmel's definition that the community is predominantly residential and business should be subordinate."

The next meeting of the Citizens Committee will be held March 13 at 8:00 o'clock in the evening in Sunset School cafeteria. A speaker on planning will be on the program. Any interested person is invited to attend. Specially invited are city officials, council members and planning commissioners.

CAGE OF IDLENESS

Within the cage of her own idleness,
A hermit's cage from which she never stirred,
Bleakly she sings out of her pale distress,
She sings and watches like a nervous bird.

The caravan of life moves past her bars
Through sun, through rain that beats like a savage drum.
She waits beneath the silver march of stars
For what will never come.

—LUCIA TRENT

I USED TO FLY

I used to fly,
With wings upgirded by your love.
Against the wind,
Straight into storms I flew,
Until your disapproval
Clipped my wings.
I flutter now sometimes,
Half-hearted—
But flight is for the strong.

—CLAUDINE KEINONEN

IMPETUS

I saw a dream go beckoning by along the path of sleep;
there moved a gleam beside her step,
though the mud was lying deep.

That sight was beacon for my hope,
rebuke for my despair.
I stumbled through the suck of mud,
for the dream led safely there.

The path sloped up, the ground lay firm;
her light no further gleamed,
and I was climbing life alone toward the challenges I dreamed.

—HELEN FAULKNER

AFTER VISITING SAN JUAN BAUTISTA

In the clay of that ancient floor
Are implanted footprints of village dogs—
Mute witness of lesser creatures
Who also lived, and desired to live;
Then passed on. We say they died.
Yet God is the God of the living.

On the altar of San Juan burn candles.
At high noon peals forth the tone of a great bell
Whose vibrations seem to awaken the past.
Men labor at heavy tasks, dogs bark.
That which was, again seems to be,
And the heart of life beats on.

FROM A LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

Ruth Galvin Thornburg, Librarian

This past month has been the busiest February we have ever had. One day we charged out 841 books, and that is the biggest day we have ever had. Public, we love you! Our daily average was about 522 circulations. That's pretty good for a medium-small library, and when I say "pretty good" you realize I am being becomingly modest. And so, to books.

We have for you this week a most unusual book. It was written by Nikos Kazantzakis as a modest sequel to The Odyssey, and entitled that, then translated into English by Kimon Friar, and illustrated by Ghika. Let me quote from the revue in The Booklist, where it says, "This modern sequel to the Homeric epic is no facile imitation, but a long impassioned verse narrative which borrows Odysseus because the author, a Greek poet, novelist, and mystic, sees in him the embodiment of man's unending tortured searching." This is a beautiful and powerful book. It is classified in Greek literature, so look for it on the non-fiction shelves.

We have two biographies which merit special attention. One is by Frances Winwar and is entitled The Haunted Palace. It is the life story of Edgar Allen Poe and at the same time the story of the theater of his day and of the struggles of actors and actions of critics and poets. Poe is described as a strange and misunderstood genius. The second biography is about another man of genius who also was an alcoholic and a drug addict. This is the artist Modigliani, and the story of his life was written by his daughter Jeanne. The title is Modigliani: Man and Myth. There are many illustrations of the work of this great painter and many of them are in color.

On the practical side, we have Dog Obedience Training by Milo Pearsell. It's never too late to teach your old dog new obedience, and this is just the book to help you in doing so. Full of photographs to show you just how to show your dog how to be good.

There are eight or nine new novels, one of which is Fandango Rock by John Masters. The scene is Spain, the characters are the eating, drinking people Mr. Masters knew there. There is bull fighting also, which should be of interest to many.

March is generally one of our big months of the year. Come in and borrow a few books for a happy March of reading.

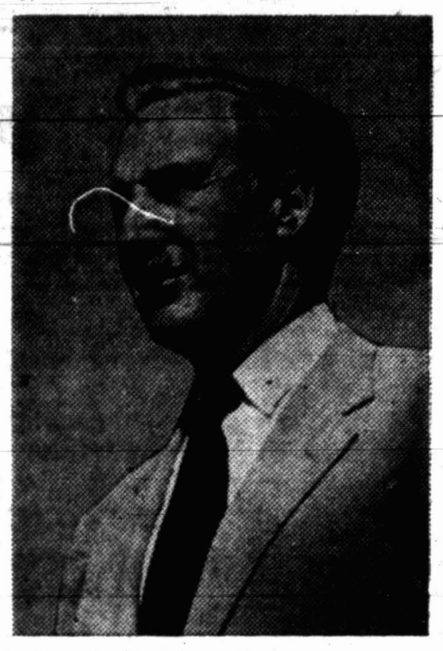
NEED PRINTING?

Small and large printing orders are quickly filled at The Pine Cone Press. Dial Carmel MA 4-3881.



Dr. G. Harrison Orians will conduct the Audubon Screen Tour, Great Smoky Skyland, Monday evening at 8:00 o'clock in Sunset Auditorium. Since his boyhood in Marion, Ohio, Dr. Orian's hobby has been taking motion pictures of wild birds and animals. After earning his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees, Dr. Orians accepted professorships at the University of Illinois and the University of Idaho. His love for nature resulted in his being a ranger-naturalist for a time at Yosemite National Park. At present, his is Professor of English and Director of Summer Sessions at the University of Toledo.

One of the most beautiful of wilderness areas — the Southern Appalachian Highlands—is in the western part of North Carolina. Here, tree-covered mountains are topped by clouds and mists which make phantoms of the woods. Linville Falls, Chimney Rock, Grandfather Mountain, Mt. Celo, Davenport Gap, the Balsams, are filmed in color by Dr. Orians.

Here the reminders of a rustic, primitive civilization; crude but picturesque suspension bridges; houses made of slab boards or logs; grist mills run by water conveyed through wooden flumes; old, hand-operated wells; utensils made of gourds; crafts such as weaving; all disclose the ways of the mountain folk. Added to this is the infinite variety of bird, insect, flower, reptile and mammal wildlife, in the sequence which comprise Monday's Screen Tour, the Great Smoky Skyland. Tickets may be purchased at the door by those who do not have season tickets.

Tennessee Williams' Four One Act Plays At Studio Friday

The Studio Theater opens Friday night with a quartet of short plays by Tennessee Williams entitled Women and Tennessee Williams. These four plays are from Mr. Williams' collection of his most famous sketches of women which he has developed later into full-length plays.

Blanche of Streetcar Named Desire is revealed in the one-act study called Portrait of Madonna and Alma of Summer and Smoke is recognized in the hollow irony of another of the four one-acts titled Something Unspoken. Two more short plays, This Property is Condemned and A Perfect Analysis Given by a Parrot will complete the program.

This group of plays all dealing with women, and ranging from broad farce through tragic drama will play on Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 o'clock.

Easy telling the time of year by your P. G. and E. bill. When it's cold and the nights are long, it takes more gas and electricity to make you comfortable.

Winter makes extra work for most all your appliances. Even this winter, which is milder than usual, you're indoors more . . . using more heat, more lights . . . brewing more coffee, watching more TV and so on. And if your home is like most, you have more appliances this year helping you to live better. The chart at right shows how the use of natural gas, for example, goes up when the weather is colder and nights are longer . . . and why your P. G. and E. bill is higher. Of course, the unit cost of gas and electricity goes down as your use increases giving you even greater value for your utility dollar!

Mike Monahan On Location Here

"Will you fly to your location . . . on the Monterey Peninsula?" a representative of Filmasters asked actor Mike Monahan last week.

"That's my home," replied Mike. He agreed to fly here on Tuesday and remain through Wednesday to act in an Army TV recruiting picture filmed at a down-coast gas station.

"First time I've been on location here," Mike told us soon after his arrival," and the first time I've been flown to a location."

His Carmel visit was "a race with the stork," he remarked. He and his wife Sherry, who remained in Los Angeles, are expecting their third child "any hour." However, Mike's mother, Mrs. Bruce Monahan is in Los Angeles for three weeks. She took care of Mike's family until he flew home yesterday.

"I still play young-man-about-22 parts," Mike told us. He looks only slightly older than when he graduated from Carmel High School in 1948. Since then he has obtained a B.A. degree at Santa Clara University, spent two years in the Navy and become the father of Shannon, three and a half, and Sean, who will be two years old in May.

Mike's enthusiasm for drama began when he was a Sunset School student and wrote, produced and acted in "garage-staged" shows. Throughout his high school, college and Navy years he pursued this interest. In 1952, Mike wrote the book for That's the Ticket, a musicale he produced at the Forest Theater with Ric Masten and Don Adams. He also took one of the leads in the show.

He is now a free-lance actor. "Watch for me in Lucky Strike TV commercials," Mike said as he left the Pine Cone to see former school friends still living in Carmel. "We are planning a Carmel High School gathering in Los Angeles," he added. Floyd Adams Jr., Mary (McElroy) Williams and Biz (Carr) Perkins are some of the people who want to get together. We all live so far apart that it's difficult to arrange, though."

Wayfarer Auxiliary

A talk on Christian Education as carried out in churches of today was presented at the meeting on Tuesday afternoon of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Church of the Wayfarer by Victor Davis, the new minister of Religious Education of the church.

Mr. Davis outlined the development of such teaching from Judaism during six centuries B.C. through early Christianity, the medieval or Roman period with its monastic and cathedral schools, then the Protestant Revolution led Martin Luther with emphasis on the Bible rather than the organization of the church, and finally modern Christian education.

The speaker outlined the development of secular schools in the last century-and-a-half, with religious education carried on by the churches with emphasis on moral character, brotherhood and service centered in family life and activities of the church. Devotions preceding the program were given by Dr. Fred Farley.

The meeting conducted by Mrs. J. R. Christie, president, followed a luncheon served by Circle One, chairman Mrs. G. M. Kennedy. Mrs. Christie announced the missionary tea to be held at the church on April 3, with women of All Saints' and the Presbyterian churches as guests.

Citizens Committee Puts Over School Bonds For Pfeiffer

Thanks to the enthusiasm and hard work of a citizens' committee headed by Mrs. Irene Whitcomb, the Pfeiffer School District Bond election, Tuesday from noon to 7:00 o'clock, passed overwhelmingly with 90 yes votes, 8 no.

The election called for approval of $35,000 bond issue and application for state loan of $125,000 to build a new elementary school in the Big Sur area.

The 30-year bond and payment of state loan will call for a tax of 40 cents, it is estimated.

Whether the down coast schools will annex to Carmel School District or Monterey is in abeyance, according to Mrs. Bette Sommerville, clerk of the three-member Pfeiffer school board.

Some of the citizens favor unification with the Carmel District, some with Monterey. Senator Fred Farr is proposing legislation in Sacramento this week to make it possible for the down coast districts, Pfeiffer and Palo Colorado, to annex to Monterey. Under the state code they may not, since Monterey district is not contiguous — Carmel intervenes. Annexation to one of the districts is necessary to provide high school education for the down coast students. Earlier, it appeared that the down coast districts overwhelmingly favored annexation to Monterey, since their students have been attending Monterey high school. However, in the past few weeks opinion appears to have been changing at Big Sur.

"When we know whether or not we shall have a choice," Mrs. Sommerville told the Pine Cone, referring to the Farr bill before the legislature, "we will then find out what the citizens want."

distance, especially in the case of adult school students. Many Carmel adults are taking advantages of the Monterey College night school courses in languages and electronics.

Stuart Mitchell will suggest, at the April 2 meeting, that if there must be a time lag under the state school code governing annexation, special legislation be proposed by Senator Farr. With the backing of the county board of education, and the county board of school district organization which look favorably on the county-wide junior college district, from both an educational and financial point of view, such special legislation should not be difficult. It is assumed that the state department of education, whose policy has been to encourage unifications, would also support any legislation that would facilitate a county-wide junior college district.

Council Will Take Its Time To Reconsider Fenton Gas Station

tee had passed a resolution earlier this week (see story elsewhere this issue) approving the council's ruling against the gas station. Campbell said that no new information had been presented to justify reopening the matter. Eben Whittlesey also spoke against reconsideration. Attorney Tom Perry, who said he represented nobody and spoke as a citizen, though he is not a resident of Carmel, said he was circulating a petition addressed to Leslie Fenton, urging that he not abandon the development and that he, Fenton, request the rehearing.

Persons supporting a reconsideration argue that the gas station is financially necessary to the underground parking which is a part of the four level, block-size development which includes 15 shops, a 71 unit hotel, two restaurants, a bank, etc. They fear a less attractive development will result if these plans are abandoned. "Stand-patters" say that there is nothing to fear in the way of eyesore development since I. Magnin's and Bank of America, two of the lessees, are not likely to accept unattractive structures, settings, or neighbors, and will insist on off street parking. The nature of the lot, and a city ordinance prohibiting driveways on Ocean Avenue, assures that parking will be out of sight. "Stand-patters" express the curbstone opinion that the "switchers" are being bluffed.

200 Citizens Participate In Area Planning Session; Frown On Light Industry, Favor Cultural Center

Two hundred citizens from Carmel, Monterey, Pacific Grove, Seaside, Del Rey Oaks and unincorporated areas on Saturday morning forgot civic or residential individualities and planned a desirable future for the Peninsula as a whole. They developed Peninsula community ideas at a three-hour planning conference at Asilomar sponsored by the Monterey Peninsula Area Planning Commission and the Monterey County Citizens Planning Association.

The tourist industry may be more desirable than light industrial development they suggested. A cultural center should be planned. Government, the tax structure and schools might benefit if all communities became one unit. Scenic beauty should be preserved; also the Peninsula's historic heritage. These were some of the ideas presented by the 17 groups which spent 45 minutes proposing plans for the future of this area.

Public ownership of all beach lands for recreation was another idea for the future, presented by the groups. The majority went on record as favoring more meetings similar to Saturday's. They also favored citizen participation in any future area planning.

A recorder from each group reported findings. At the end of the recording session, Abraam Khrushkov, the area planning commission's hired consultant, analyzed the 17 group findings. He pointed out the advantages of metropolitan thinking for the Peninsula area and emphasized that utilities are already handled on the Peninsula unit basis. Nevertheless, he indicated the desirability of each community's retaining its own individuality in any area planning.

Mr. Khrushkov also prophesied that with 60 million persons predicted as the population of California in 40 years, the Peninsula would not only gain more residents but more visitors. He advocated careful planning for control of this area's development in all spheres. Development should follow the designated wishes of the citizenry, he said.

Carmel City Clerk Larry Rose acted as co-ordinator and interpreter of group reportings. Keith Evans, chairman of the Area Planning Commission, opened and closed the meeting. Will Shaw of Carmel, representing the Monterey County Citizens Planning Association, organized Saturday morning's conference.

Town Topics . . .

"Will everyone please sign the lists on the table before leaving," City Clerk Larry Rose asked participants in the planning conference at Asilomar on Saturday. "Don't worry those of you who are from Carmel," he added, "it's not a petition. Just the conference register."

Have you noticed Carmel's watchtowers? The buildings on each side of Ocean Avenue at Mission Street are topped by turrets. Now we know where Carmel's mythical sentinels stand watch, guarding the Fenton Block against Progress. "No pumps! No chains," is their password.

"Why can't we climb the trees?" Teryl and Ritchie Colburn, Petey and Rinnie Alley asked a ranger on Sunday afternoon. They had just been told they couldn't play in the cypresses on the state-owned River beach below Scenic Drive. The ranger explained about danger and damage. Crestfallen, the children relinquished a Carmel birthright, the privilege of playing in the spreading branches.

Uffey, pet of the Fred Farr family, bounded on to the River Beach on Sunday. Up stepped a park ranger, "You must leash your dog, sir!" he rebuked. "Come here, Uffey," called State Senator Fredrick S. Farr.

Uffey spent a quiet afternoon reposing by his master and mistress, no gamboling with Nancy Farr, Susan Campbell and Missy Lofton.

Dale Dawson's Friday-the-thirteenth case of German measles is claiming second-round victims. This week, among Carmel High School students covered with spots, were a song leader, some members of the junior varsity basketball team, one varsity player.

Topics told how Dale, three weeks ago, played in a basketball game against Live Oak not realizing he was breaking out in a rash. This week's measles came from contact with him at that time, presumably.

Board Approves $108,000 Classroom

Carmel school trustees last night officially awarded a $108,000 contract to the firm of Tombleson and Huck, Inc., for construction of six new classrooms at Tularcitos School. Last week trustees designated the job to the Salinas firm but had to obtain approval from federal authorities for use of federal money for the addition before making their decision official last night. They also authorized the work to proceed.

Out of $30,843.39 remaining from the recent bond issue, trustees authorized the purchase of furniture for three classrooms at River School, $4,800; biology equipment and cafeteria tables at the High School, $2,716; equipment for the Tularcitos School, $500. From the same fund they will employ a full-time gardener for the district, $1,400, until July 1.

In other action Carmel school board members granted tenure and a leave of absence without pay for one year to Robert Wilson, High School teacher. Sabbatical leave for Marcia DeVoe, River School, and Neil Jensen, Sunset, were granted providing suitable replacements were found. They accepted the resignation of Louise Fenn, music teacher at Sunset. Mrs. Nadine Kubas, who resigned last fall for the benefit of the district when two classes were combined in one, must repay the district $104.18 of the salary she received from September 1 to September 15, school opening day, was another board decision.

Trustees voted that $180, paid to the district by the state for student teacher-training last spring, belongs in the general fund of the district. Teachers had requested that the money be divided among those of them who supervise the student teachers during the period they practice-teach in the Carmel elementary schools.

Principals Orville Rogers of Sunset and Richard O'Connell of Woods and River, felt that the money should be allotted to members of their faculties.

The 1957-58 audit report of the firm of Reed and Heckenlaible, district accountants, was officially accepted at last night's adjourned school board meeting.

Carmel Little League Tryouts Scheduled, Spring Has Arrived

for their age group. A boy's age is determined on Little League Age and not necessarily on a boys age on a given day.

Little League Age is that age attained by a boy prior to August 1 in any given season. Thus, a boy whose 12th birthday is on July 31 or earlier has a league age of 12; a boy whose 12th birthday is on August 1 or later, has a league age of 11. This principle applies regardless of age. Parents are asked to help the boys determine their League Age so that they report at the proper time.

When reporting for the tryouts it is necessary that the boys bring along a photostatic copy of their birth certificate or of a hospital record. If neither of these is available the league will accept a notarized affidavit stating the boys birthdate and signed by both parents. The league will not accept original birth certificates as they must be kept for record in the leagues permanent file.
